

Abstract

A method for raising funds includes holding a financial instrument of a first organization in a passive vehicle. The method also includes providing, by a second organization, capital to the first organization as evidenced by a promissory note secured 5 by the financial instrument. The method further includes receiving, by the second organization, a right and/or a benefit that the passive vehicle receives with respect to the financial instrument as repayment of the promissory note.